» Buyers want the authentic, the experiential, and the sustainable. Antiques and vintage deliver all three.

Welcome to the fifth edition of Ronati's guide to trade fairs and shows in partnership with THD×ANF.

Five years in, one thing remains clear: nothing replaces a fair. It's where a buyer picks up a piece, hears its story, and comes to trust the dealer telling it.

Today's buyers want the authentic and the experiential, and they want to buy sustainably. Antiques and vintage deliver all three, which makes this an exciting time for the trade.

A relationship that starts on a stand shouldn't end when the fair closes. The dealers thriving today sell across every channel, in person and online, using technology and AI to carry each connection further and run their businesses more efficiently.

Everything we build at Ronati is built to help the dealer and uplift the trade. While frontier AI speeds ahead, we focus on AI and technology solutions that are purpose-built to help the dealer in the real world, right now.

This guide is part of that purpose. Use it to choose the fairs where you should exhibit or attend: locations, attendee profiles, price points, style focus and more.

Our thanks to Gail McLeod and Angel Tan of THD×ANF for their ongoing partnership and dedication to the trade.

Here's to a great show season!

THE HOUSE DIRECTORY

» We are delighted to work with Ronati on this 2026/27 guide to trade fairs, an essential complimentary resource for the antiques, vintage and design industries.

2026 has seen BADA, the British Antique Dealers' Association, making a fair debut in Rutland. Other premier trade association fairs, LAPADA and CADA, continue to attract a wide following in Mayfair and Chelsea.

Trends included the rise of art fairs and the advent of elite makers' events. Open-air fairs and flea markets have enjoyed an explosion of business with exhibitors from the upper echelons of the trade experimenting with new audiences.

AI is playing a major role, and we are excited to use this tool while remaining dedicated to original content and opinion.

THD, a long-time partner of Ronati, is a respected portal for the interior design industry with a young team headed by owner Angel Tan.

The ANF fairs calendar has been recognised globally as the leading resource for events in the UK, EU, and USA for nearly twenty years.

The THD×ANF collaboration works across the antiques and design industries and increasingly with the makers' sector, and we see major changes in how events will be promoted.

We look forward to continuing our partnership with Ronati, a company that has led the way in developing technology to transform the trade.
