Helping Dealers of Vintage, Antique, and Pre-Owned Items

For the past five years, we've worked alongside vintage, antiques, and one-of-a-kind dealers in the US and UK, creating simple yet powerful technology solutions that make a real difference. Through countless conversations, one question consistently comes up: "Where should I list online?"

This question sparked the creation of our Annual Guide to Online Marketplaces in 2022, developed in partnership with LAPADA. Each year, we refresh it with new data and insights to help you identify the marketplaces where your unique pieces will resonate most with potential buyers.

Consider this your compass for navigating today's digital marketplace landscape. Our goal remains unchanged: to help you succeed in an increasingly competitive market by connecting your exceptional inventory with the right buyers.

Wishing you a year of sales and growth in your business,

» The Year Ahead: Navigating the Evolving Art & Antiques Market in 2025

As we embark on a new year, the art market continues to evolve at a rapid pace. 2025 is shaping up to be a year of cautious optimism in the art market. While the global economic climate remains uncertain, there are several factors that suggest a potential for growth and resilience.

This year, we can expect to see a continued emphasis on digital innovation. Online marketplaces, virtual exhibitions, and augmented reality experiences are all becoming increasingly sophisticated, offering new ways for artists, dealers and galleries to engage with art and expand their global reach. In this dynamic landscape, dealers recognise that establishing a strong online presence is not an option, but a necessity.

One of the most recent and dominant trends in collecting is for pre-loved and vintage as consumers are increasingly aware of the environmental impact of furniture production and fast fashion as well as searching for pieces that allow individuals to express their personal style through one-of-a-kind pieces to stand out from the crowd.

At LAPADA, we recognise that these trends make an excellent working knowledge of online marketplaces a must for our members, as they look to expand their visibility and customer base. In partnership with Ronati we have created a Marketplace Guide. This refreshed 2025 guide joins its predecessors in being intuitive and useful for art and antiques dealers who want to quickly navigate and understand the benefit from the multiple marketplaces available online today.

As more dealers trading online, the web offer must meet their specific demands. Having recognised this some time ago, Ronati has created a suite of tools that will help dealers boost their online presence. This guide, developed in partnership with Ronati, is designed to help dealers grow in a highly competitive market.
